Side, after residents in that community organized, virus among residents of the shelter system. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS) less persons there is actually not a new development. 1,000 online participants on October 1. homeless men in the Financial District, drew more than de Blasio administration plan to locate a shelter for eviction moratorium goes away, want to be able to stay decision that almost everyone disagrees with. “This is about pitting one leader, I completely say that Pier 26, “was此次活动的搬台三式 a pier, or an ‘ecological pier.’ But what that could Tecumseh, Pierce, Poe House, our executive director, “enriching our personal paths through Battery Park City.” The Path displays poetry spanning 2021. Poetry Path will remain in place through events. Free and open to the public, the Path PoetSHouse.org/poetry-path/map/ The Cove Is Your Canvas On three upcoming Saturdays morning From “Transit” OPEN MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY 9AM - 9PM CASA TAQUERIA Thursday, October 15, 4:00pm 69 NEW YORK STREET 212.809.69901 69 NEW YORK STREET 212.809.69901 CasaTaqueria.com Nueva Mexicana Cocina (near the foot of South End Ave) The Cove Is Your Canvas From “Praise Them” The birds don’t bear color. They need it. Li-Young Lee ArtsGratia The Downtown Alliance is presenting two art installations. At the 200 Water Street pavers, pathways, and signs. These are accompanied by in-depth Poetry Path web resources and a series of virtual events. Free and open to the public, the Poetry Path will remain in place through 2021. Coffee and coquina, the public to step into the living tradition of poetry, while cultivating a wider audience for the art — celebrating its 30th anniversary in Battery Park City by launching the Poetry Path, an immersive outdoor installation running the southern length of Battery Park City, from Rockefeller Park to TriBeCa Park to the North Cove Marina. Produced in partnership with the Battery Park City Authority, the Poetry Path features fragments from more than 40 poems, repositioned on bench-backs, banners, signs, pathways, and signs. These are composed in Teardrop Parks to the North Cove Marina. Battery Park City, from Rockefeller and Battery Park City Day Nursery Our Commitment to Health & Safety We are committed to ensure outdoor spaces are clean and safe. To reduce the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and hand lawyers to the agency from housing approximately 150 inmates there. After City officials agreed to vacate the facility, they settled on the Rochester New York Wall Street, it is located at 32 William Street. Housing homeless persons there is actually not a new development. The City’s Department of Homeless Services (DHS), has used the building since March as a temporary facility, aiming to limit the spread of the pandemic coronavirus among residents of the shelter system. But DHS now plans to convert the facility into a longer-term shelter, for clients who are deemed to be transferred from lower levels, on the Upper West Side, after residents in that community organized, raised funds, and han...
References available upon request.

Caring, experienced Nurse’s Aide bins, sink, a/c. All utilities are in.

of a bright and sunny 500+ sq.ft.

plenty of wall space and storage

Savvy social media skills a must.

project basis with well-reviewed

Available for PT/FT Exp’d. Refs.

THE RADISSON NEW YORK WALL STREET

12 WALL STREET THE SITE OF A PLANNED HOMELESS

Shelter

12 WALL STREET is the site of a planned homeless

shelter.

Pier 26 Opens with Amenities Aplenty

5:00 pm," for the men sheltered there. "This is a

six-day-per-week program, from 8:00 am through

8:00 pm," for the men sheltered there. "This is a

six-day-per-week program, from 8:00 am through

8:00 pm." The Center, located near the Lucerne Hotel, has raised, individuals have, I don’t agree with it.”

son in every family has situations. I’m not coming back to you with per

You also know that I don’t talk about why this

…from the Lafayette to the Radisson New York Wall Street

rickSomething you need to go back and talk with about information about this population. What are their issues? Are they dangerous? You should know this, because you have been working with them.”

But I am talking about something that is going on. Every person in every family has situations. I’m not coming back to you with per

You also know that I don’t talk about why this

…from the Lafayette to the Radisson New York Wall Street

rickSomething you need to go back and talk with about information about this population. What are their issues? Are they dangerous? You should know this, because you have been working with them.”

But I am talking about something that is going on. Every person in every family has situations. I’m not coming back to you with per